Background

The concept for Cleavitz® started in 2004. Julie Crotty was a successful business executive with a passion for fashion, and she struggled to find a comfortable and simple way to "manage" her cleavage.

"So many tops in my closet were too risqué for work, and I needed a way to make them business appropriate during the day, and at the same time, a little more fun at night," says Julie.

The Search Begins...

For years, she tried the various solutions: tube tops, bandeau tops, fabrics that taped or strapped/snapped to bras, girdle-tanks, halter-tops – you name it. Each solution she tried provided more challenges.

The tapes didn't stick, the clips were uncomfortable, the halter tops slid down too far, and the tank tops bunched in the back, added bulky fabric lines, and were simply too hot in the summer... so much so that she started cutting off the bottom half of full tanks tops and wearing them that way. Julie searched extensively for a half-tank or camisole that would do the trick, but to her surprise, there was nothing comfortable on the market that could solve her problem.

With this in mind, she designed her own top and had it custom sewn – one in every color.

"I was amazed at how many shirts, tops and dresses that had been laid to rest in my closet were resurrected when I started designing Cleavitz Tops," states Julie.

"Then a funny thing happened. Friends and family started asking questions. 'Where can we buy them, and are they made in different designs?' When I said I was making them myself, they asked, 'Can you make some for me? I'll pay for them!'"

Cleavitz is Born!

At this point, Julie quit her job as the Chief Meeting and Events Officer at United Communications Group. And in 2008, Cleavitz was born for the purpose of creating comfortable tops that would allow women of all bust sizes to display as much cleavage as they cared to for a variety of occasions. Once the name "Cleavitz" was trademarked, Julie settled on two unique lines – basic colors for everyday wear and lace/silky patterns to dress up any outfit.

Julie is in the process of developing new Cleavitz styles for both teens and adults. But when not working, she enjoys wine tasting, volunteering, and having fun with her 11 nieces and nephews, family and friends.

Cleavitz Buzz

“With all the low-cut options out there, they were struggling to be fashionable and trendy with a little coverage.

Once I became part of that community, it felt like a natural fit, and funding breast-cancer research was a perfect way for Cleavitz to give back.”

“I really spent a lot of time perfecting the design. No one had created a comfortable top that was specifically designed to help women manage their cleavage. There are many gimmicks out there, and I’ve tried them all.”

Striving for a Better 2011

After opening Cleavitz LLC in September, founder Julie Crotty sent several hundred emails to clothing boutiques, asking if they’d be interested in carrying her undergarment product. But when she called to follow up, she realized that most clothing retailers secure inventory through procurement representatives or at trade shows. “Now I know who I’m after,” says Ms. Crotty, whose firm is based in Laytonsville, Md. Going forward, she plans to attend trade shows and hone her pitches to attract representatives for the maternity clothing industry and others.

Scripps Howard News – Dr. Bruce Column

“According to Julie Crotty, founder of Cleavitz cleavage-control half-tops, it’s important for new entrepreneurs to pursue opportunities that get their products and services in front of their target market...”

“Are they comfortable? Extremely.....Do they provide you with the right coverage? You bet! I Love the way I can change the look on my tops just by adding a Cleavitz to my outfit and most definitely love the freedom of walking around without the need to worry about re- adjusting my camisole and know that I am not showing more than what I intended!”

"The Cleavitz half top is a styling aid that nearly any woman can appreciate. Yes, even if you don't have the predicament of ample cleavage this nifty wardrobe accessory can be perfect for layering and even extra nipple coverage.

Created in 2005 by a business executive who's work wardrobe was limited by tops with work-inappropriate plunging necklines, the Cleavitz is one of those 'where have you been all my life?' products.

You've likely seen clips and tapes designs create a 'bib' or 'lift' fabric to mask cleavage. I know my mother in law spent the last 3 months telling me about how she wanted some ridiculous patch of clip on fabric she'd seen on late-night TV. It certainly didn't sound sexy."

"I just love my Cleavitz! I've been wearing tanks under some of my shirts because my bust is out of control with this pregnancy. Try putting on pants that come up to your chest, then a tank top, then a shirt and its 110 degrees!
